CURRENT TOPICS.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

LIV. CONGRESS.

(First Session.)

THE senate was not in session on the 3d. In the house the army appropriation bill for the coming fiscal year was reported. A bill was passed granting right of way through the Choctaw nation to the Arkansas & Choctaw Railway Co. The senate free coinage substitute for the house bill was received, and referred to the committee on ways and means. Nearly the entire session in committee of the whole was spent in discussing the District of Columbia appropriation bill and pending amendments thereto.

In the senate, on the 4th, the finance committee reported the house tariff bill with a substitute providing for the free and unlimited coinage of silver. A resolution, offered by Mr. Quay, to recommit the report with instructions to the committee to report back the original bill and the substitute as separate bills, went over for one day on objection of Mr. Hill (N. Y.) to its immediate consideration. A discussion of proposed amendments to the rules occupied the remainder of the session.

In the house the committee on ways and means reported recommending nonconcurrency in the senate substitute for the house bond bill. In the senate, on the 5th, the foreign relations committee reported a substitute for that committee's former concurrent resolution on the Cuban question, recognizing a condition of actual war and according to each party thereto all the rights of belligerents in the ports of the United States. The joint resolution directing the secretary of agriculture to carry into effect the provisions of the agricultural appropriation bill for the purchase and distribution of seed, etc., was discussed during the morning hour, but went over without action.

In the house the District of Columbia appropriation bill was defeated by a vote of 141 to 133. A bill was passed forbidding prize or bull fights in any territory of the United States or the District of Columbia. The report of the committee on ways and means recommending nonconcurrency in the senate free-coinage substitute for the house bond bill was taken up. In the senate, on the 6th, Mr. Quay modified his resolution to recommit the house tariff bill, with the free coinage substitute, to the finance committee, with instructions to report them both as separate propositions, but striking out the latter phrase and inserting the words "for further consideration." Mr. Quay also consented to let the resolution lie over a few days. Resolutions of inquiry were agreed to in relation to the bond bills received on the 5th, and to discrimination against American cattle, meat and other agricultural products by Germany, France, Belgium and Denmark. The Catron anti-prize fight bill was passed.

In the house the day's session was devoted exclusively to the further consideration of the bond bill and the senate free coinage substitute therefor. At five o'clock the house took a recess until 8:30, the debate being continued at the night session.

In the senate, on the 7th, the chaplain, in his opening prayer, thanked God for "the confidence of the people in the financial strength of the nation." Senator Frye, of Maine, was chosen presiding officer. The Dubois resolution, on motion of Mr. Allison, was referred to the committee on rules by a vote of 40 to 28.

In the house Mr. Talbot (dem. S. C.), arising to a question of personal privilege, referring to the criticisms of the press upon remarks previously made by him, reiterated that he believed secession to be right, and declared that under the same conditions, he would repeat his former action. Mr. Barrett (rep. Mass.) asked that Talbot's words be taken down, and offered a resolution denouncing them as seditious and treasonable. The matter was later referred to the committee on the judiciary. The remainder of the session was devoted to the discussion of the bond-silver coinage bill.

MISSOURI STATE NEWS.

The St. Louis Kissing Case.

The court of appeals has handed down a decision in the celebrated St. Louis case of Pierce vs. Carpenter. A. B. Carpenter kissed Mrs. Sarah M. Pierce against her will, so she alleged, and she and her husband sued for damages. A jury gave her $2,500, and the court of appeals sustained the verdict.

The evidence in behalf of Mrs. Pierce tended to show that Carpenter not only forcibly kissed her, but made an insulting proposal. The defendant moved for a new trial, because only nominal damages should have been allowed. The motion having been sustained, Mr. and Mrs. Pierce appealed, holding that under their pleading it was competent for them to show and for the jury to consider, for the purpose of allowing exemplary damages, the insulting character of Carpenter's conduct. The court of appeals sustains this opinion. The plaintiffs having pleaded the unlawful character of the act, the evidence concerning the aggravated character of the assault was properly admitted. The judgment of the circuit court granting a new trial is set aside and the case remanded, with instructions to rehear the judgment.

This Man Is Honest.

The Excelsior Manufacturing Co. of St. Louis, stove makers, has made an assignment.

Mr. Giles P. Filley, founder and president of the concern, is 81, and has been in business in St. Louis since 1848. More than 30 years ago he inherited the paper of his friend, John Howe, for more than $800,000. Howe failed, and Mr. Filley was left to make it good. Howe died in California in 1870. Mr. Filley's friends endeavored to force him to go into bankruptcy and compromise the obligations of $800,000 on the dollar, but the honest, straightforward man would not do it. All these years he has been pegging away paying these obligations, and he has now paid them all, until now, after paying $1,400,000, with his form bent with years, he gives up the fight, and the sheriff comes in and takes possession.

The manufacturing concern of which he has been the head always made money until recently. One day he lost $200,000, and then there strikes and other troubles.

A Portrait of Judge William Scott.

The portrait of Judge William Scott was presented to the supreme court, in Jefferson City, a few days ago.

He sat on the bench of the state supreme court for many years before the war. The presentation was made by Col. James O. Broadhead, of St. Louis, ex-minister to Switzerland. On behalf of the court, Chief Justice Boone responded to the remarks of Col. Broadhead, accepting the portrait. Judge Scott wrote the majority opinion in the Dred Scott case. (35 Mo. 522). He died on his farm, and he was buried there, and, according to St. Louis papers, his grave is now in the center of a barren, unmarked by a stone. Some years ago an effort was made to get a legislative appropriation to have the remains removed and a monument erected over them, but it was not carried through.

Pretty Good Evidence.

At Columbia Sallie Gordon, colored, was on trial for arson, and a pile of rags and paper, saturated with coal oil, was introduced in evidence. The attorney for the defense claimed that the combustibles contained no oil. To investigate the court applied a lighted match. The pile was in a blaze in an instant, and the court-room was in flames. There was a stampede for the doors, and the fire alarm was sounded. The flames were extinguished before serious damage was done.

A Bad Gang of Tramps.

Fayette was recently infested with a band of tramps, who insulted women whom they found unprotected at the houses they have visited.

Officers located their rendezvous in a vacant house near the cemetery. A fight ensued, in which clubs and knives were used freely. The officers were reinforced by citizens, and 12 of the 18 tramps were lodged in jail. A search of the tramps revealed the following: one, a cold chisel, one steel-edge plate, one file, one stick of dynamite about eight inches long and a lot of tramp hieroglyphics.

Must Hang for Wife-Murder.

The supreme court has affirmed the death sentence of Thomas Pusson, of St. Joseph. Pusson killed his wife, and on the first trial was convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced to 20 years in state prison. He appealed to the supreme court, and got the sentence reversed, but on the second trial in the lower court he was sentenced to be hanged, and this verdict the supreme court has upheld.

Robbed on the Way to Bank.

In Kansas City C. P. Pauly, cashier of the Standard Oil Co., was robbed of $5,445, which he was taking to the bank. The highwayman was John Searey, aged 22, who has a bad record. Searey was captured, after an exciting chase, and the money recovered.

Why Gov. Stone Pardoned Her.

Gov. Stone has pardoned Ada Simpson, who was sent to the penitentiary from Cape Girardeau county for two years for grand larceny. The governor issued the pardon because he felt it would be wrong to have a child born in the institution.

A Large Attendance.

The enrollment in the law department of the state university, Columbia, has reached 129, which is 30 per cent. above last year's attendance. The enrollment in the university is now nearly 700.

Found Dead in a Field.

Jesse J. Hale, a Pettis county farmer, was found dead in a field by his 14-year-old daughter, death having resulted from heart disease.

CAPITOL REMOVAL CASE.

The State Supreme Court Denies the Injunction Asked by Jefferson City, and the Question Will Be Decided by the People at the Polls Next November—Great Rejoicing at Sedalia.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 6.—The capital removal injunction case was decided by the supreme court in bone Tuesday morning, the opinion being written by Judge George K. Macfarlane and concurred in by Judges Bruce, Sherwood, Barclay and Robinson. Judges Gantt and Burgess did not sit in the case.

The court finds that it is for the people and not for the courts to pass upon amendments to the constitution, and therefore the supreme court has no authority to interfere in this instance. This places the capital removal question before the people to be voted upon at the November election, provided, of course, that Sedalia complies with the provisions carried by the resolution as to bond, etc.

Says Judge Macfarlane: "There can be no doubt that the question of the establishment of the seat of government is one which is a proper subject for amendment. If the people had seen fit they could have given power to the general assembly to change the seat of government upon any terms it might request. Indeed, the power might have been delegated to the governor, or this court, or to commissioners, as was done by the constitution of 1820. But no such power was granted, nor did the people retain silent on the subject, and thus leave the matter to the discretion of the assembly, but negated such power by declaring: 'The general assembly shall have no power to remove the seat of government from the City of Jefferson.' (Sec. 2, art. IV., constitution 1820.)"

It is plain that in order to secure a removal of the capital an amendment to the constitution is necessary. The general assembly is not empowered to remove the seat of government from the City of Jefferson. (Sec. 2, art. IV., constitution 1820.) It is not seriously insisted that an unconditional proposal for removal would not have been valid. But it is insisted that the amendment as proposed is, and though adopted by the people would be invalid, on account of the conditions annexed thereto, and the powers delegated to certain officials.

The objection is directed against the wisdom of the measure and its expediency. As has been said, these are questions upon which the courts have no power. The amendment derives its force from the people and not from the legislature. If ratified, it shall be valid and binding to all intents and purposes, as a part of this constitution is the language of that instrument.

The court holds that there was nothing in the ordinance of admission or in the proceedings connected therewith irrevocably binding the state to maintain the permanent seat of government at Jefferson City, and that the people of Jefferson City have not secured such vested rights as will prevent the removal of the capital.

Sedalia's Jollification.

SEDALIA, Mo., Feb. 6.—The decision of the supreme court on the capital removal injunction suit set Sedalians wild, and yesterday was unanimously voted to have been the greatest in the city's history.

The news was bulletined in all of the newspaper offices, and a few minutes later fire, school and church bells were rung, steam whistles blown, flags and bunting came out like magic, cannon crackers and the salute of anvils rent the air, schools were dismissed, and the entire city was given up to rejoicing over the result.

After the noon hour two bands of music made a circuit of the city in street cars, while hundreds of men and boys, and in many cases school girls in their teens, made the town ring with tin horns of all sizes. Extra editions of the newspapers sold like wildfire, and the situation in all respects was unlike anything ever before witnessed in Sedalia.

Capt. John M. Glenn and a squad from the Sedalia Republican Flambeau club gave a pyrotechnical display on the courthouse square, while thousands of spectators crowded around and shouted the glad tidings of victory.

Sedalia's bond, guaranteeing the taxpayers of the state that not a penny's expense would attach to them in case the removal proposition is carried at the polls, is prepared, and will be put up without delay through a well-known trust company.

A public meeting was held last night at the opera house, and it was the most enthusiastic ever held in Sedalia. Many were unable to enter the building, but were content to stand in front and help swell the applause that came from within.

Owing to the illness of Mayor Hasstain, E. H. Moses, president of the board of trade, and cashier of the Third national bank, presided.

Senator Yeater was the first speaker, and was followed by Representative Bothwell, ex-Mayor E. W. Stevens, Judge W. S. Shirk, Col. J. B. Quigley and Judge D. C. Mettsker. Each congratulated the people of Sedalia, but not a sentiment was uttered condemnatory of Jefferson City or her citizens.

Speaking of the decision, Senator Chas. E. Yeater said: "The claim made by Jefferson City was revolutionary and destructive of the principles of American constitutional government. It was a dark day in the history of the whole American people, in this and every other state of the Union, to have announced the dangerous precedent that the people of Jefferson City demanded in this case. For the court to have said as they maintained, that the people can not change their own constitution, which the people themselves created and brooded into life and existence, would have been a monstrous doctrine. This is not a matter that Sedalia alone is interested in, for it is coextensive with the most sacred and solemn rights of every citizen and every voter in the state. It disposes of the autocratic claim of Jefferson City that it owns the capital, instead of the people of Missouri, and has vested rights in it. It means that the people of Missouri alone have the sovereign control of the seat of government, and can locate it at such place as will best subserve the general interests of this the greatest state of the Mississippi valley and the great west."

Representative J. H. Rothwell said: "The decision of the supreme court is exactly as I expected and predicted it would be. I have never lost faith in the high intelligence and absolute honesty of our supreme court judges. Capital removal has now passed from the courts to the people. Sedalia will very soon deposit securities with the governor that will guarantee the performance of every promise and condition of the proposed amendment, and the capital can be removed to Sedalia without costing the taxpayers of the state a single dollar. It now remains for us and our friends to explain the proposition clearly to the voters of the state, in order to insure the ratification of the amendment. This means a new era of progress and development in Missouri. It will attract new population and greater wealth. Every part of the state will ultimately share in the benefits. It means hundreds of homes of peace and a new home property to many towns."

THE CUBAN REVOLT.

Most Severe Fighting Since the Beginning of the War—The Spaniards Abandon Their Plan to Force a Battle with Gen. Maceo—Hasten to the Relief of Beleaguered Towns, and Find All the Fighting They Want.

HAVANA, Feb. 5, via Key West, Fla., Feb. 10.—The fighting in Pinar province in the last few days has been the most severe since the beginning of the war. The condition to which the Spanish forces in the west are reduced has led Gen. Marin to abandon the attempt to force a battle with Gomez, delay his return to Havana and go to the relief of the beleaguered towns.

Mace
